LOCAL NEWS.

Apache county-raised watermelons by the wagon load, and as fine melons as California can produce, are on our streets for sale.

"Hoof and Horn," published by Cowboy O'Neill, at the city of Prescott, reached us this week. We found it crammed full of "field notes."

W. W. Wall, mail contractor from Navajo to St. Johns, will dispatch every day from both ends of the line coaches for the transportation of passengers and express freight.

You delinquent holders of stock in the Holbrook I. C. D. and B. company will do well to read and heed the assessment notice of the association in this issue of THE HERALD.

Morning calls are getting quite popular among the ladies, at least with those you cannot persuade that the sun reaches the meridian by one grand bounce, or all the same as a sky-rocket goes up.

Invitations to "come round to a watermelon cutting" are flying around as thick as leaves in Yalambrosia. Take our advice and jump the outfit; it bodes no comfort to little innocents like the editor of this paper.

The district court calendar for the third judicial district, August term, 1885, of Apache county, Arizona Territory, is pronounced by the members of the bar present at court as a splendid specimen of typographical art. The work was done in THE ST. JOHNS HERALD office, and we feel highly complimented.

The array of legal talent represented in the various cases on the court calendar at this term of the court indicates an interesting season at the county court house. Our special column contains the names of the most eminent members of the bar in the territory, and just how long the term will last must depend very much upon the vigorous constitution of the judge and the amount of iron that has entered his soul.

We take great pleasure in publishing the following from the Yuma Republican relative to our townsman, Harris Baldwin, and give it our hearty endorsement. Counselor Baldwin is recognized as at the head of his profession by the lawyers of the territorial bar:

"The news that the administration asked United States District Attorney Zabricki to resign was to be expected, but as yet but little has been said as to who his successor will be. Of course he will be a democrat, and in as much as such is to be the case, no man in the territory is better fitted, either morally or intellectually, or is a better or more unswerving democrat, or is better qualified or more deserving than Hon. Harris Baldwin, of Apache county."

The Monarch saloon has all at once become animated by crowds of people from all parts of the territory. Darling has provided for the town every sort of amusement, all sorts of eatables and drinkables, every kind of game known in the west from wild turkeys, John Donkey rabbits, stud-horse poker, sage hens from Nevada, monte, little draw, wild pigeons from Stover's preserves, billiards in every variety, antelope, grizzly and cinnamon bear to chuck-a-luck, and if you don't see what you want call for it. This is Darling's layout for the festival season.

The St. Johns Billiard Hall, A. Pechner proprietor, enjoys the patronage of the creme de la creme. For the holidays—court term being a local fiesta—the spread that Pechner has arranged will cover the most extensive desires and expectations of all our people and their guests. For the occasion a music box as big as a Steinway grand has been provided to supply music for the million, and his "cut and come again" lunches are as free as the air of our lovely valley and "a way up," as the crowds that surround his generous board. Frank Clark is now now the major-domo and mixer at the establishment.

PERSONAL.

P. S. Hill, of Houck's Tanks, is in town.

William Robins, from the Navajo country, is in the city.

Art McDonald, formerly of Holbrook, wife and son, are guests at the McCormick.

Mr. Charles Kinnear's smiling countenance is seen among the crowd of visitors.

Ebin Stanley, of Springerville, is at the county seat, and everybody is glad to see him.

Captain John T. Hogue, civil engineer and surveyor of Bush Valley, is in attendance on the court.

The pleasant face of Mr. Henry Hanning, of Show Low, is seen upon the beautiful boulevard of St. Johns.

Luther Martin, ex-supervisor and representative in the ever to be remembered thirteenth assembly, is with us.

Anson C. Damon, from Fort Defiance in this county, was in town for several days this week, a guest of Sheriff Hubbell.

Lieutenant Gatewood, Sixth United States cavalry, of Fort Apache, came in town yesterday to attend the district court.

Mr. Henry Smith, of the firm of Smith, Carson & Company, stockmen of Apache county, came in town on Tuesday last.

Judge Sumner Howard, wife and daughter, Mrs. Foote, are quartered at the beautiful cottage of Mr. Brown, on Springerville avenue.

Judge John A. Rush, the nestor of the Arizona territorial bar, with Mrs. Rush and their charming daughter, have rooms at the house of Mr. A. Pechner.

Master-Mechanic Drury, of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad, whose headquarters are at Holbrook, is at the county seat with Mrs. Drury and the children.

Jacob R. Swett, of Springerville, is in town on land business. He looks cheery and cool as it is possible for a man of Vanderbiltian wealth to be. Nice man, that Swett.

Ernest Tee, esq., stockman and county supervisor, would not let the opportunity pass to enjoy society at St. Johns during court week if it cost him half his valuable ranch.

F. M. Zuck of the Holbrook house, in this county, is in St. Johns before the court as a witness in the McDonald case. He is quartered at the Lopez, and is resting after his territorial trip.

Counselor E. M. Sanford, the electric luminary of the territory, is quartered at the famous Garcia building, and is equally generous in his dispensation of hospitality and legal lore.

Edward L. Parsons, a cattleman from the neighborhood of Springerville, spent several days this week at the county seat, attending to matters in regard to land entries in his district.

T. G. Norris, attorney-at-law from Flagstaff, in Yavapai county, is attending court. Like the tall pines in his new mountain home, he stands head and shoulders above most of his fellows.

General Clark Churchill, attorney-general of Arizona, has the responsibility of several important cases before the court, and must be well nourished. He takes his meals at the casa de la Senora Brown.

C. O. Howe, general manager of the Wabash cattle company, whose headquarters are at the Salt Lake, is in town. Mr. H. is one of Apache county's most industrious citizens, and one of the noblest works of God.

J. C. Herndon, of the law firm of Herndon & Hawkins, Prescott, has important cases at this term of the court. Mr. Herndon is a keen, argumentative and profound pleader and advocate, and will make his legal mark at this session.

James Fields, agent of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad at Holbrook, was torn away from his lovely family by the mandate of the court and the indiscreet decrees of Providence, and now wanders about the streets of the city homesick and dejected.

Sol. Luna, like the golden sun in its brightness, and the shining silver emblem of purity, has been with us for many days. The more we see of him the handsomer he grows. Mr. Luna is one of the princes of Valencia, and right royally does he exemplify his elevated origin.

Nat. Nobles, of Fort Apache, whom we have known as a New Mexican and an Arizonian, lo, these many years, shows up again in all his earlier excellence and beauty. Nat has more acquaintances in the great southwest, and more friends on his honorable roll, than any other pioneer in the territory.

W. O. O'Neill, court stenographer, illumines the village with his pleasant countenance. He is here to report several cases of more than ordinary interest that will come up for trial before Judge Howard. It will be remembered of Mr. O'Neill that he seemed to be the only man that had control of his senses in Judge French's court at Prescott at the time the brute McAteer attempted to take the lives of everybody in the court-house, including the judge, and who was only restrained by the courage of O'Neill in seizing the uplifted hand of the villain who in his rage was about making a quietus of a human being in the room. These are the men we love.

W. C. Hazeldine, the attorney for the Atlantic & Pacific railroad company, has quarters at the Garcia, and lives sumptuously at the Lopez hotel. The case of Art McDonald vs. the Atlantic & Pacific railroad company will engage his attention, and is a case that will attract more than ordinary interest in railroad circles.

Colonel J. Francisco Chavez, whom everyone from the Missouri river to the breakers on the Pacific coast knows and loves, is doing the town, not particularly on court business (though he may be counting for all we know). The colonel looks, even though the years are numbering upon him, as cheerful as ever, "as bright as the sun, as fair as the moon, and as terrible as an army with banners." Viva, colonel.

NO "HOLD-UP."

The town was all excitement Tuesday caused by the report that another "hold-up" had been made in this county. The sheriff, acting on the information received, sent out a strong party in pursuit of the "hold-up" men. It was reported that a boy came into town that day and in breathless haste reported his animals stolen on his way hither. The party of officers dispatched by Sheriff Hubbell to apprehend the supposed robbers, within an hour or two discovered that there was no good foundation for the report, that the boy had become frightened at the approach of the party of strange men and supposed that they were about to gobble him, hence his wild break for help and succor.
